Success At Sustain Magazine Awards 2009

Marshalls picked up three awards at the Sustain Magazine Awards, including the International Award for Trade, the Governance Award and the highly coveted Gold Award for Sustainability, Business and the Built Environment.

The inaugural awards marked the 10th anniversary of Sustain Magazine. Held at the Novotel London West Hotel on Tuesday 3 March 2009, the awards celebrated the achievements of organisations that have shown a real and tangible commitment to sustainability.

Marshalls won the highly coveted International Prize Award for Trade for its pioneering approach to supply chain accountability, particularly with regards to its partnership approach to overseas suppliers.

“Winning these awards is a testament to our approach and Marshalls’ commitment to sustainability”, says Chris Harrop, Marshalls’ Group Marketing Director. “Every business should make an active contribution to society as part of its key strategy, and the Sustain Magazine Awards showcased the very best. It is imperative that businesses spearhead the sustainability movement by making real and positive social change.”

The award judges were equally impressed by Marshalls’ approach. For the International Award for Trade, they said: “The Judges were delighted to see a commodity producer engage so well at a global level with sensitive and complex ethical issues.”

Marshalls adds these accolades to a growing list of awards acknowledging the FTSE4GOOD business’s core policy of social responsibility, including a Big Tick from Business in the Community and Biodiversity Benchmark status from The Wildlife Trusts as well as recently being accepted by the United Nations Global Compact.
